Kids Castle Closed:

Kids Castle in Central Park is temporarily under wraps and will be closed until Phase I of the restoration project is completed sometime in late June 2013. The Save Kids Castle team is hard at work making the repairs necessary to preserve and improve this community icon. Restoration of the Castle's interior began after the Castle closed on Saturday, March 23, 2013. The project, which will be completed in a series of three Phases, includes revamping the Castle's interior, repairs to the surrounding playground, and adding innovative new play spaces. The plan is to complete all Phases within two years if all funding goals are met.

All major renovations of the Castle and the surrounding play areas over the past fifteen years have been accomplished through financial support from the community, volunteer work and in-kind donations of goods and services. Kids Castle has reached another milestone and is now in need of restoration and repairs. This project, when completed, will also include innovative play areas and structures that were inspired by kids for kids. To continue providing this wonderful and unique play area as a place where many cherished memories can be made, Kids Castle needs your support. Visit www.SaveKidsCastle.org for more information and find out how you can help.
